

Problem

Groups or individuals that are looking to preserve historical architecture may face the issue of not knowing how to contact and work with the owner of the building.

Approach

Creating potential guidelines for preserving historical architecture and ways that groups and individuals can contact and work with the owner of the building, using Prague as a case study.

Background

- Chose a city known for its historic architecture, in this case Prague
- Began research into the materials of the buildings in Prague, as well as finding buildings in disrepair and contacting their owners
- Ran into the problem that building owners were next to impossible to contact

Conclusion

Communication between all parties and the community surrounding the building is crucial for a successful preservation effort of the building.

Nádraží Praha-Vyšehrad. Prague Station at Vysehrad.

Acknowledgements

Thank you Deborah Packard, Professor Farzin-Moghadam, Professor Fiocchi, Professor Everette, & Professor Kumble.

References

Act of the Czech National Council on State monument care 1987 (CZE) s. 425/1900 (Czechia)
 Retrieved from https://www.mkcr.cz/assets/ministerstvo/zakon-o-statni-pamatkovce-pe-egrave\_1\_eng\_final.pdf
 HEREIN SYSTEM. (n.d.). WWW.COE.INT. Retrieved October 31, 2018, from <http://www.herein-system.eu/czech-republic-country-profile>
 Raymond, N. (2012, April 9). Czech Republic Grunge Flag [Digital image]. Retrieved November 28, 2018, from www.freestock.ca
 ŠJÚ. (2009, February 23). Nádraží Vyšehrad 4 [Digital image]. Retrieved November 29, 2018, from https://commons.wikimedia.org/wiki/File:Nádraží\_Vyšehrad\_4.jpg