

Tutoring at Elm Park

Promoting Volunteerism at a Local School

Elsa Luthi, Thomas Mackintosh, Lily Olsen, Nathan Peura

Ignorance Is NOT Bliss - Advisors: Prof. Paul Kirby, Prof. Robert Traver and PLA Mariana Vertoni

Project Goals

- Increase number of tutors at Elm Park Community School
- Spread awareness of volunteer opportunities at WPI

Solution

- Spread awareness using chalk art, info cards, flyers, table sitting
- Provide info on duties, commitment, and work study compatibility

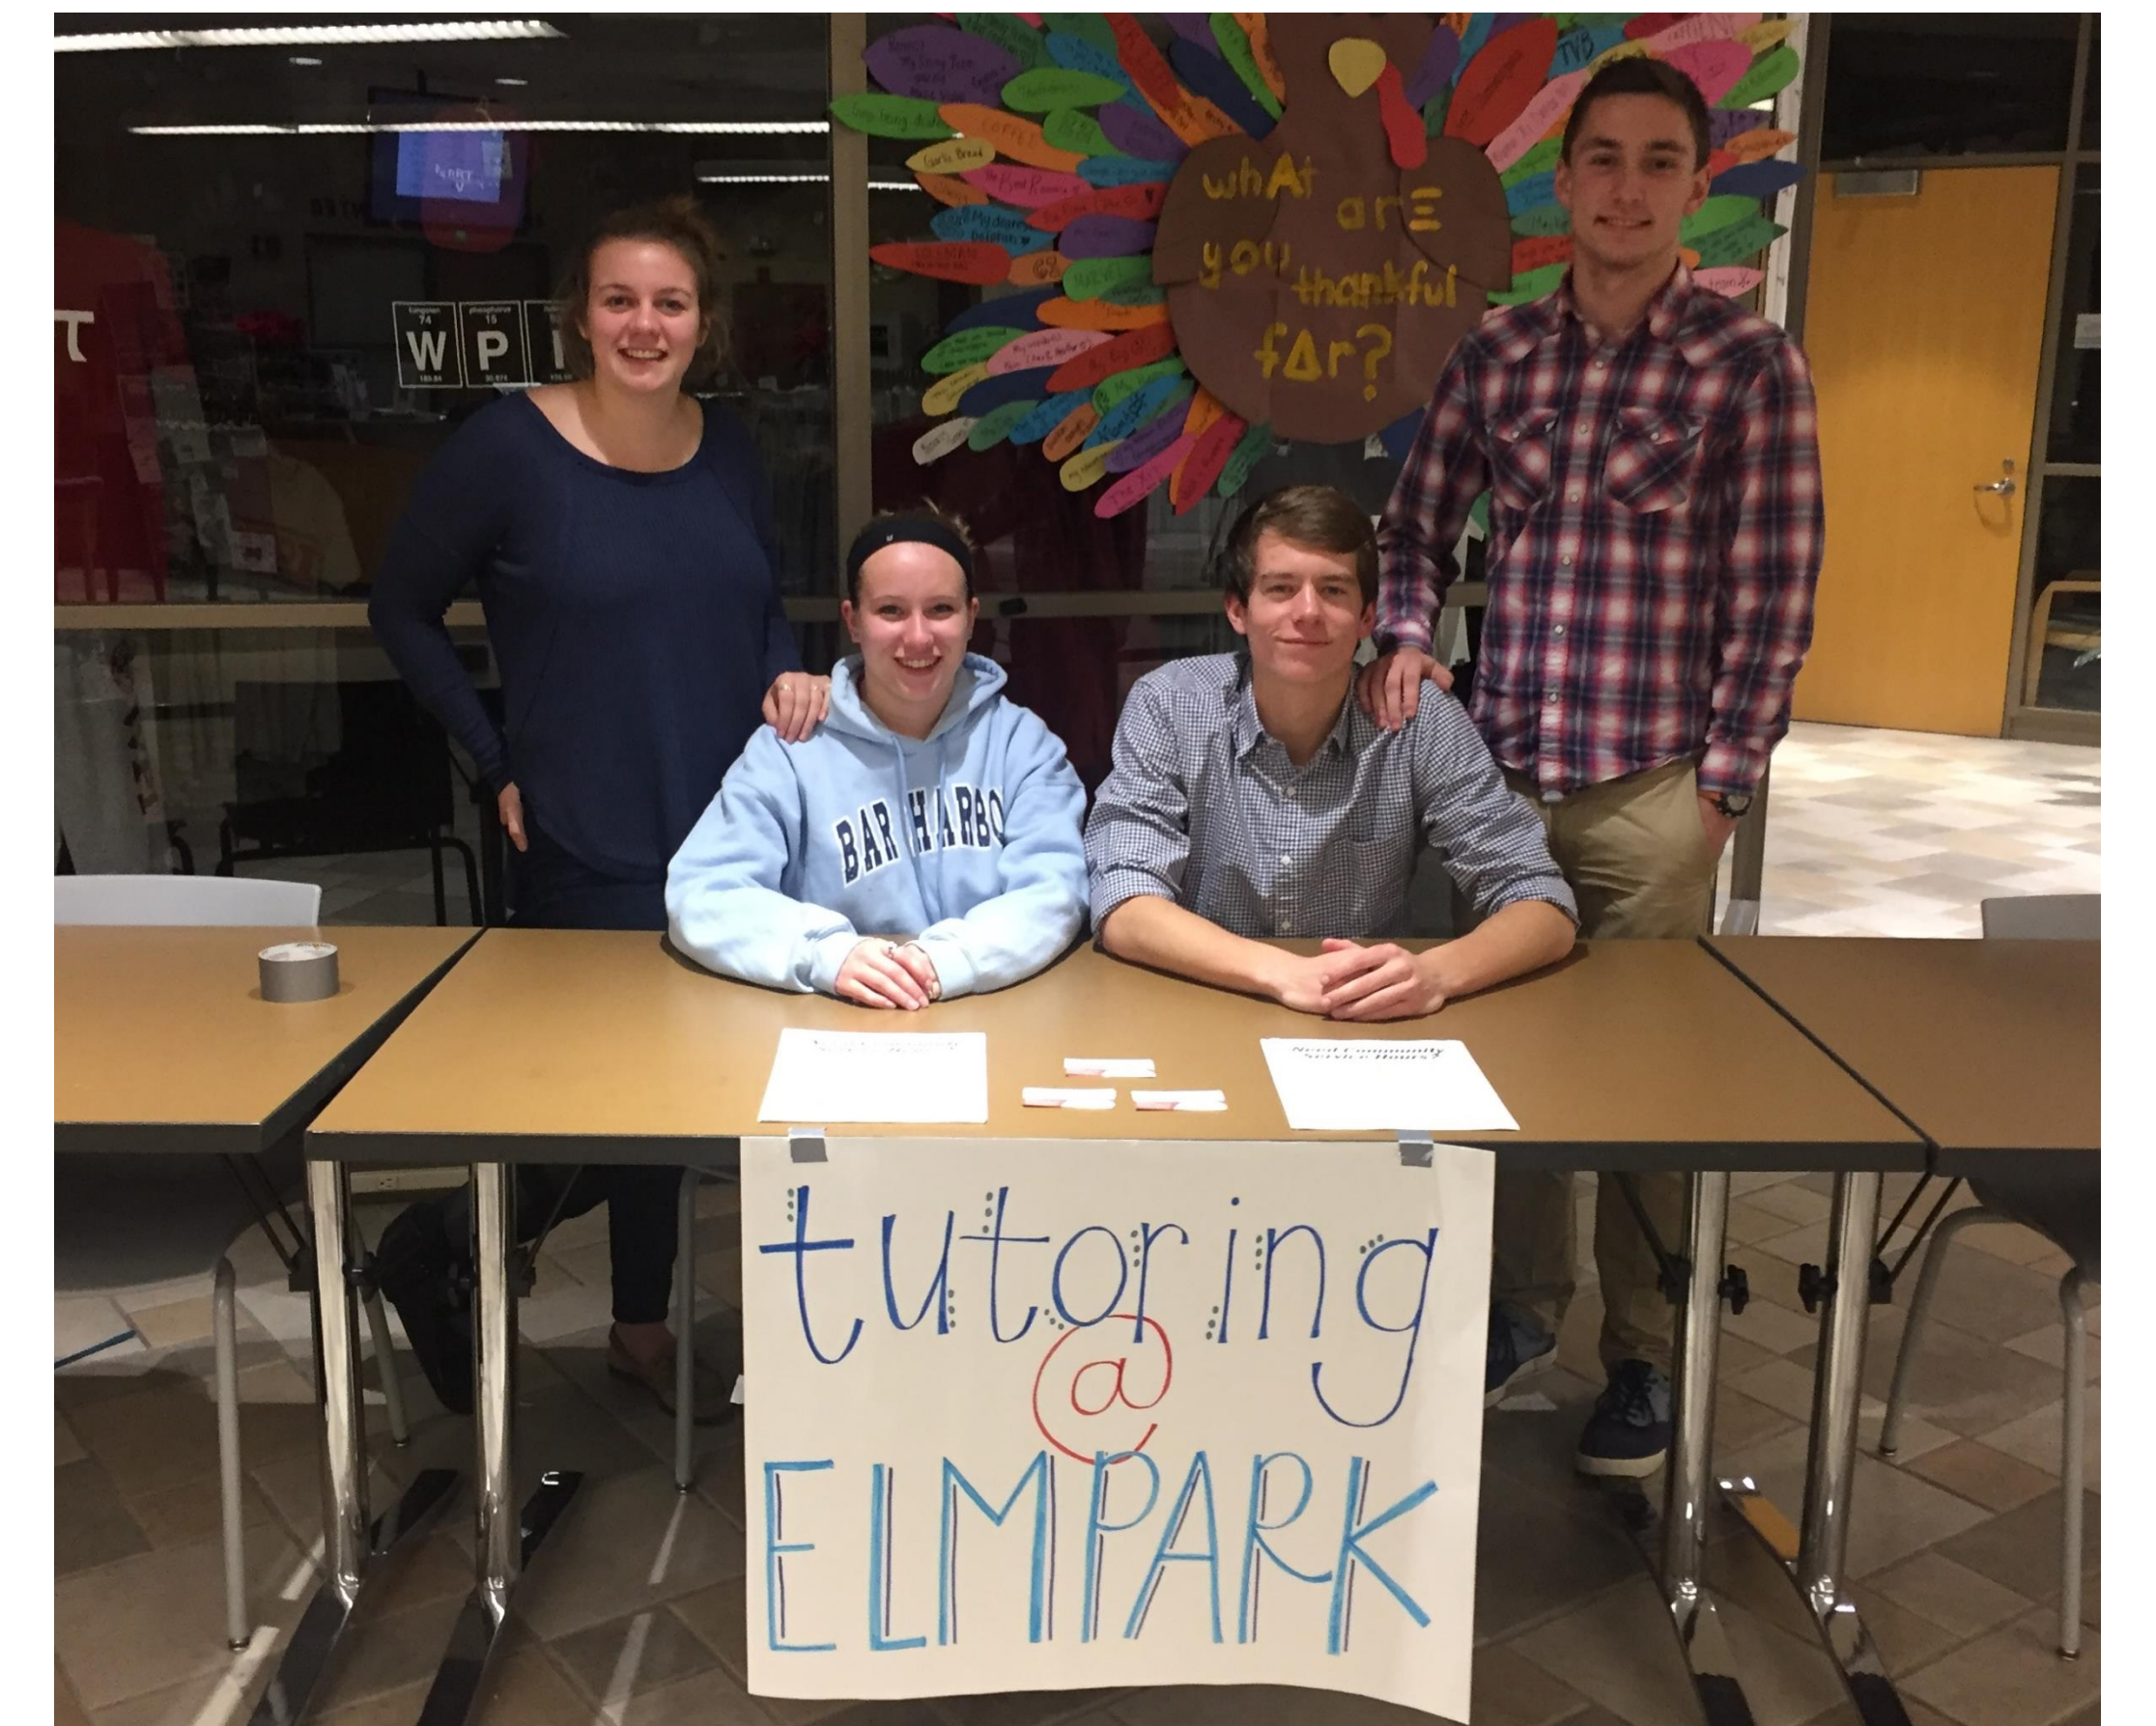

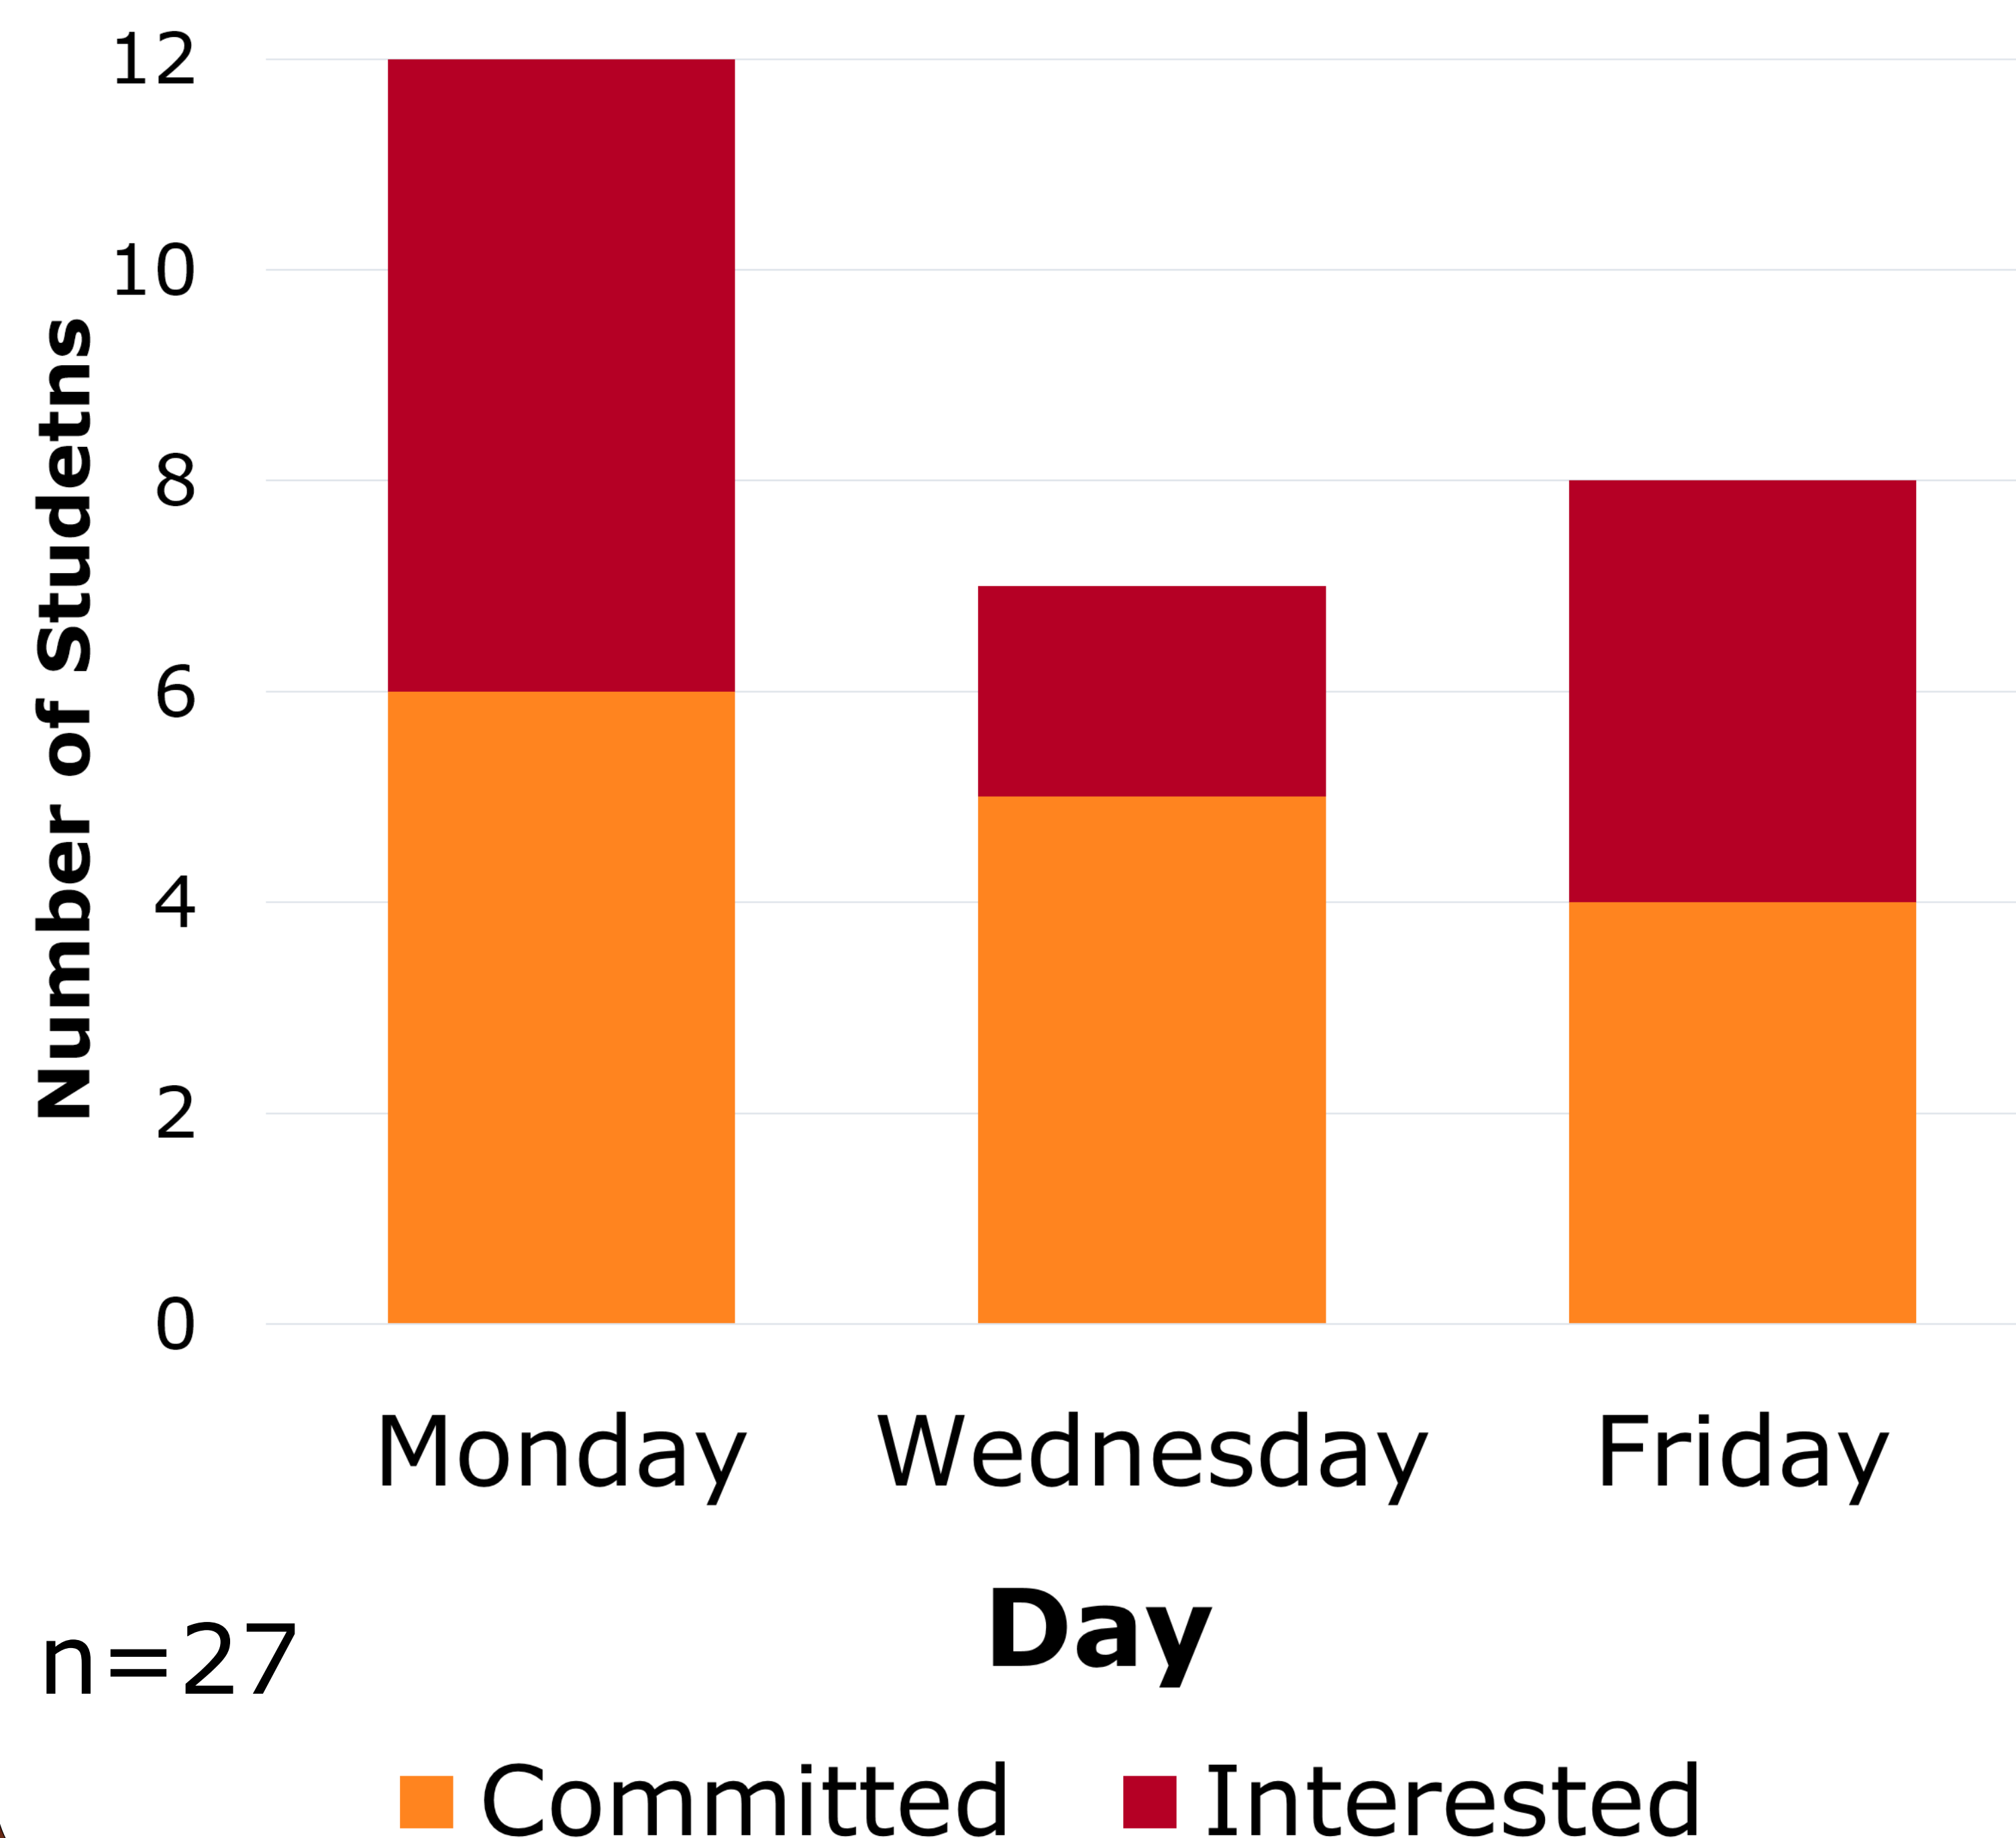

Tutoring in the Classroom

Assessment Plan

- Compare number of people each day at WPI Campus Center that sign up
- Mark if they are committed and willing to participate

Number of WPI Students that showed Interest or Committed to Tutor at Elm Park

Spreading Awareness at WPI Campus Center

Further Development

- The whole group will be emailed at beginning of C term
- Check in with Elm Park representative regarding tutor participation
- Reach out to SAO to continue spreading awareness once a month

References

Chitty, C. (n.d.). Education and Social Class. The Political Quarterly, 208-210.
 Choi, S., & Lemberger, M. (2010). Influence of a supervised mentoring program on the achievement of low-income South Korean students. Mentoring & Tutoring: Partnership in Learning, 18(3), 233-248.
 Montague Williams (2014) A Review of "Educating All God's Children: What Christians Can—and Should—Do to Improve Public Education for Low-Income Kids", Religious Education, 109(2), 222-224.
 Rumberger, R. W. (2010). Education and the reproduction of economic inequality in the United States: An empirical investigation. Economics of Education Review, 29(2), 246-254.
 Schoeneberger, J. (2012). Longitudinal attendance patterns: Developing high school dropouts. The Clearing House: A Journal of Educational Strategies, Issues and Ideas, 85(1), 7.